Foreword

*Y*outh looks to the future for the fulfillment of its dreams, for the achievement of its aspirations, for the attainment of the highest good. He catches a glimpse of the needs of mankind, and his vision is matched with the undaunted enthusiasm that is peculiarly characteristic of youth. It is the thing that causes man to progress and makes possible the greatest development of his capacities.

Now is a particular time of planning—a time when the world is faced with tremendous and far-reaching decisions, when the College looks ahead to extensive enlargement of its opportunities, when we near the close of our college careers and begin to plot the course our lives shall take. It is essential to acquire in all this planning a proper perspective. He who would see beyond the immediate and gain the long view must attain a mental and spiritual height that will raise him above his circumstances and place him on the mountain top, where he can see clearly and face unflinchingly what lies ahead.

We have attempted to catch something of this view in relating a few representative experiences of this college year . . .

... and so we dedicate this yearbook to the Juniatians of the future—to the students who in years to come will build memories in its halls and along its pathways.

With a dwindling student personnel, greater responsibility has been devolved this year upon the few. These days have been lived for the time when war's scars will have been healed and when life may be lived to its fullest once again.

To the student of the future we tender the thrill of entering college with its sense of strange adventure ... and the succeeding years threading their way through a labyrinth of new experiences, traditions, and practices. Unfettered and vigorous, may he go forward in new adventures touched by a burning desire for truth.

Across the gulf of years we extend to the future Juniatian vivid memories of springtime coming to "the college set among a thousand hills," vibrant autumn hues, mountains standing majestically robed in white, mist settling heavily into valleys as caught by the dawn, moonlight witchery over Lion's Back ... and many other glimpses into the student's life portrayed in this book of memories.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

This has been the most difficult year of the war, but Juniata has moved forward with courage and faith. This "Alfarata" reflects the mood of our college community as we plan for the future. There has been time to study the function and evaluate the effectiveness of the various student activities. Under the leadership of Miss Barbara Boyd, the first woman president of the student body, the college Senate has discussed all phases of our college life and made many helpful suggestions.

Our thoughts at all times have been with the Juniata men and women in the armed forces. At Christmas the student body sent a greeting to each of them. We remember especially the men of the Class of 1945 who will not be here for Commencement, but who, with the others, have an outstanding record of heroism and devotion.

Faculty, students and alumni have been thinking and planning for the Juniata of tomorrow. We hope that soon the men will return and we will again hear Lion's Back echo our cheers for a long end-run in the autumn afternoon. We believe they will find the same Juniata spirit with even finer educational opportunities.

We would commend the students for their tolerance and understanding in this critical time. We hope that you will carry through all your years the Juniata spirit of helpfulness and cooperation. Our country and our world will have great need for this spirit.

Calvert N. Ellis

EDITH L. SPENCER, Dean of Women
J. CLYDE STAYER, Dean of Men

To all of us, college was a new adventure. In a few words, it meant meeting new people, learning new personalities, fitting oneself into a new environment, gaining factual knowledge, receiving spiritual enrichment, adapting oneself to the activities of a large and varied family. As individuals we changed and grew; as a group we contributed to the history of Juniata. For such an adventure, guidance was found in the combined efforts and activities of our Deans, leaders of our Juniata family.

Dean Edith L. Spencer's office is the core of numerous campus activities and social events. For the individual girl she is adviser and counselor; for the dormitory organization she contributes valuable suggestions and guidance. Aside from the executive position, we enjoy her special artistic and musical talents.

Dean J. Clyde Stayer serves us in a two-fold capacity—as adviser to the men students and as a professor in the field of mathematics. We enjoy his friendly smile and find him always ready to cooperate and to give a helping hand.

During the student's life at Juniata, he studies, works and plays in an atmosphere of fellowship. Not the least contribution to his life here is that of the faculty. Perhaps their most important task is to teach him to broaden his mind, to help him find a place in our complex modern society. By their example of scholarship and unselfish service the student learns the true value of education as a comprehensive yet basically solid learning upon which to draw.

As a factor in his social education, the faculty is of inestimable worth. The student learns from its members that one of the prime requisites for a well-adjusted life with fellow-men is tolerance. This, and a knowledge of the fullest meaning of a good personality, that is, one which is not merely socially effective but which is also personally satisfying, enables him to cope with the various problems which will confront him later.

A student always feels the need for advice in times of crisis. The members of Juniata's faculty have given this to the student freely, out of their more mature comprehension of his problems and difficulties. Especially in times of increased stress and tension has their aid been of value. Neither leaving the student adrift without a rudder, nor "spoon-feeding" him with a nicely prepared philosophy, a panacea for all his troubles, they have given him the individual attention and guidance so necessary for producing independent, stable, clear-thinking men and women, capable of meeting the future without hesitation or indecision.

A vital part of the educational program of Juniata College is the training of students for leadership and good citizenship. The means for accomplishing this is found in the form of student government. Emanating from a central governing body known as the Student Senate, a cooperative system of legislation and enactment is carried out in all campus organizations.

Every college activity has its various chairmen who are working under a president or a general chairman. He, in turn, with his cabinet or committee, is responsible to the Senate member representing his phase of activity. Thus the whole program is a net-work of student leaders radiating from the central body, the Student Senate.

THE SENATE

Following tradition on College Hill, the Senate this year has maintained its characteristic hue of representative government. Working under conditions distorted by the effects of world wide conflict, the "mighty twelve" have held the banner of democracy high. An abiding faith in the ultimate rightness of things has helped them solve many unusual problems.

The members of the Senate are elected to their positions only after having measured up to the required standards in personal integrity, mental ingenuity, and wise judgment with efficient and intelligent leadership. Each one must do not only the particular task which his position entails, but also any number of odd jobs necessary to promote worthy projects on the campus. An example of the ingenuity of the Senate was shown this year in handling problems arising from the burning of the Music House at 1630 Moore Street. Petitioning the aid of the student body, Senate members organized practical and financial help for those who were affected most. There was also much work done in cleaning and repairing salvaged property.

Another worthy accomplishment of the organization this year was the creation of Senate Handbooks to be used as guides for Senate members. There was also composed a handbook to be used as an aid by those students acting as chairmen of campus events.

Ranking high on the Senate program were the two open Senate meetings held for the benefit of the students. It was here that students could see not only how the Senate works and how its meetings are conducted, but they could also present problems to the Senate or make any suggestions they might have concerning college life. Under such a plan, the suggestions or ideas are discussed by members of the Senate and the student body. Those accepted by the Senate as being wholesome and worthy of consideration are brought in turn to the attention of the Administration.

In retrospect, as we look at the complete picture of the 1944-45 Senate and its work, we see that this is the first time in the history of Juniata that the position of president has been filled by a woman. Barbara Boyd stepped from the vice presidency to the presidency upon the departure of William Maclay, who had originally been elected president but was called to the service of his country. A majority of the other offices were filled by women also. However, the vice presidency and the chairmanship of Men's House, Athletics, and Religious Activities were headed by Juniata men, so the influence of Cloisters still was felt.

And so it is—the years come and the years go. As this year's Senate gives way to a new group of leaders, the members do so with the hope that they have done their job well—their job of representing the student body of Juniata College.

THE FRESHMAN COMMITTEES

One of the major governing bodies on campus is the Freshman Committee whose task it is to help the incoming students adjust themselves to college life. Formerly, this committee was known as "the Court" which imposed penalties of a frivolous nature. In keeping with the seriousness of the times, this practice was abolished this year, and a committee was organized entirely on the constructive basis.

Included in the orientation of freshmen are minor duties such as press club, desk duty, flag duty, and athletic duty which belong to the routine of college life. Although these sometimes seem drudgery to the freshmen, they are necessary services for the college family. It is through these duties that the new student develops responsibility, a necessary quality in the future citizen.

Freshmen must learn to get along with the upperclassmen, and it is the Committee's duty to help them.

It is also the Freshman Committee which greets the new students and introduces the regulations. At times, it would be more convenient to use the Front Steps or the Diagonal, but it has become traditional for the freshmen to wait until Move-Up Day.

A large part of the student's first year at Juniata is in the hands of this Committee, and through cooperation, it becomes a pleasant and successful experience.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEES

House Committees function with one primary goal in mind—to integrate the students into a satisfactory association together. Representatives of the various dormitory halls are selected to form the House Committee, which aims to enforce regulations and provide a wholesome atmosphere, social and intellectual. The Chairmen of the two houses this year, Jane Rummel and Llewellyn Merritt, are members of the Senate, the student governing body.

Featuring the "Cloister Hep Cats," under maestro Vincent Guide's baton, the Men's House Committee sponsored a campus talent program in October. The evening's entertainment included skits and musical numbers by the college men with the Chairman of Men's House acting as master of ceremonies.

Activities of the Women's House have been extensive this past year. "The Latch Key," instituted by the House President for the first time this year, was published to acquaint freshmen with dormitory life. The first social event was the Thanksgiving Banquet under the chairmanship of Virginia Baker. With her committee, Phyllis Bair planned a unique Christmas dinner, following which Dr. C. C. Ellis, President-Emeritus, read the traditional "Christmas Carol" in the Social Rooms.

Always during the semester exams, the House Committee provides afternoon teas and periods of relaxation. This year, a Christmas tea was also arranged under the leadership of Ruth Miller, a senior student. The Valentine Banquet was another event on the House Committee's calendar. Other activities varied—sandwich sales, purchases for the Social Rooms and Infirmary and floral decorations for the College Dining Hall.

During the absence of the Women's House Chairman, Sara Jane James and Helen Keller served in that capacity. Charlotte Stutzman was elected secretary. As adviser and Dean of Women, Miss Edith L. Spencer was an important member of the group.

Sara Jane James Baldwin: This attractive, accomplished dietetics student will be remembered as the able editor of the 1943-44 "Juniatian" and the '44 Senate's Chairman of Publications . . . Barbara Boyd: Marked as a campus leader, "Barb" became the first woman Senate prexy. In her many activities she exhibited a vibrant personality motivated by seemingly inexhaustible energy . . . Betty Jean Cochrane: As chief editor, "Mighty Mickey" expressed herself through the "Juniatian" columns, mais elle parle francais aussi. Under her cloak of reserve, ideas take form readily . . . Hazel Hemminger: Our soft-spoken Y. W. C. A. president executed her responsibilities in a quiet, efficient manner as chief waitress and general of the hockey team, as well as in religious and French activities . . . Mary Louise Koch: This versatile senior was Dr. Will's efficient biology lab assistant. In addition, she ably filled her position as contributing editor for the "Juniatian."

Llewellyn Merritt: A straightforward thinker, well versed in current world events, "Llew" has proved himself a capable leader of the International Relations Club, and in addition presided over the men's dormitory . . . Jane Rummel: The "petite but mighty" women's house president and 1944 May Day chairman, "Janie" has well won her place on J. C.'s Honor Society through her Home Ec accomplishments . . . Gretchen Smith: Active on both "Juniatian" and "Alfarata," "Gret" was chairman of Stunt Night, '44, a worthy Senate member as Central Treasurer, deserving her place on the Honor Society . . . Louise Stayer: "Squeeze" with her cheery helpful attitude served many a flustered freshman from the library desk. She was active as Senate secretary and as French Club officer . . . Sara Ellen White: The girl with the infectious smile who kept campus buzzing with general activities, "Sally" distributed her time between Home Ec and sports.

This year's Freshman Class, the class of '48, has proved that it is going to be an outstanding class in the history of Juniata in the years to come. Being the class with the largest number of students this year, it has been active in all phases of college life.

After being initiated by the Sophomores, the Frosh settled down to the true business of college—earnest study. Only occasionally were members of the class reprimanded by the Freshman Committee for their misdeeds. The live interest which the Freshmen had in the activities of college was demonstrated by their excellence in scholastic affairs as well as the social events of the year. Several representatives of the class gained fame by making the honor roll while others were outstanding in the games of hockey, basketball, and other sports.

However, just as other classes diminished in members when Uncle Sam beckoned, so did the Freshman Class. Many of the male members left at semesters in order to enter the armed services and others were called from time to time throughout the year. In honor of these classmates in the service, the Freshmen have taken their places in the duties of college and have tried to carry out the tasks with renewed vigor.

Endowed with a deep religious heritage, Juniata College strives to maintain the ideals set up by its founding fathers. Students here have all the opportunities for living the abundant life.

Nestled in the mountains, the campus and its surroundings encourage communion with nature, while spiritual uplift springs from the merging of vibrant Christian personalities. At the same time, planned religious activities provide spiritual nourishment and give opportunity for actual practice of the great commission to teach all peoples.

Grounded in such a foundation, the student goes forth from Juniata with an abiding faith in the rightness of the universe accompanied by the sincere belief that the Truth in the end will triumph, uniting all nations in a common brotherhood of love under the will of the Almighty.

The primary aim of the religious organizations on Juniata's campus is to meet the spiritual needs of the students. In planning the programs for this year, these organizations have tried to make them as broad as possible.

Included in the religious organizations are the Ministerium, Student Volunteers, Maranatha Club, the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A. The Ministerium is a professional club which aims at warm fellowship between fellow student ministers and their faculty advisers. Two high points in the program of the Ministerium this year were the devotional services conducted at the county jail each Wednesday evening and the College Church Night. This was the first year that College Church Night has been held. Once a month, ministerial students were in charge of the Sunday evening service at the Stone Church. Alfred Behrer, Raymond Day and Earl Kaylor were the speakers in three programs. The purpose of such a plan is to create more wholesome relationships between the student body and the local church.

The Maranatha Club has a twofold purpose. Its members study God's Word to learn more about His will, and they also try to obey Christ's great commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." At the meetings of the Maranatha, different ministers, missionaries and Christian workers bring messages and tales of personal experience. Then too, the Maranatha Club took as one of its main responsibilities this year the teaching of the Cold Springs Sunday School. This was done Sunday afternoons by various members of the group.

The Student Volunteers organization is based entirely on student initiative. Stimulated by a desire to share divine experiences with fellow Christians, the students of Juniata gather twice a week for fellowship. Many opportunities are provided through student planning and conditions of the Volunteers services. At times speakers from off campus are invited to speak at the meetings. Earl Kaylor was the president of the group this year.

The Student Volunteers also instigated weekly evening prayer meetings held in the women's and men's dormitories. It has sponsored deputation groups under the chairmanship of Grace Landis, which went to the Blair Hospital Sunday afternoons to bring cheer and solace to the patients. In the fall, a group was sent out to two churches near DuBois. Alfred Behrer was the speaker, the Freshman Trio sang, and Betty White was the accompanist. Such activities promoted deep fellowship and good will.

The Y.W.C.A. is one of the largest student organizations on campus. Sponsoring such activities as the Big-Little Sister Movement and the Christmas Bazaar, the club has had a fruitful year. The adoption of a war refugee from Sweden and the sponsoring of two panel discussions on stewardship and race relations were high points of the year. In line with the Y.W.C.A. was the Y.M.C.A. headed by Harold Dimit. Its activities consisted mainly of devotional meetings. Also included on the calendar were joint Vesper Services sponsored in connection with the Y.W. Dr. M. J. Brougher of Greensburg was a guest speaker at a meeting in the fall.

The various religious organizations of the campus sponsored Vesper Services, some of which were held in Oller Hall. Speakers included Reverend Harry Geissinger; Reverend Warren B. Hayes, who was speaker at the Y.W.C.A.-sponsored Thanksgiving service; Dr. Calvert N. Ellis; Dr. Frank Gabelein; and Dr. Dean Faulkner, who is Dean of the Chapel at Fisk University. One Sunday afternoon an organ recital was presented by Dr. Tertius Noble, the noted English organist, now of New York City. Other services were held on Round Top and in Founders Chapel and were led by Juniata students.

The Juniata World Service Fund Drive, headed by Grace Landis, was held this year from March 5 to March 15. The goal, which was $400, was far surpassed. Achieving the highest total ever reached before, students, faculty, and friends of Juniata gave a sum of $850. Included in the activities arranged to attain this sum was the benefit concert given March 11. At this time, Mr. Richard Duffan of Harrisburg was the guest soloist. Benefiting agencies of the drive were the American Red Cross, the World Student Service Fund, Dr. J. M. Blough, who is a missionary in India, and H. Stover Kulp, who is a missionary in Africa.

Spiritual Emphasis Week, an ever important event on Juniata's campus, was held this year from March 18 to March 23. The leader of this spiritual program was Dr. Clyde W. Meadows, pastor of the King Street United Brethren Church in Chambersburg. Dr. Meadows is also Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania State Christian Endeavor Union. Because he flies his own private plane from place to place, he is known as the "Flying Parson."

Chapel Services in Oller Hall

Another highlight in the religious program of the year was the entertainment of special representatives of various national religious organizations. These representatives included Reverend Blizzard of the Student Volunteers movement, Miss Patricia Reith of the American Friends Service, Miss Polly Barkhoff of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, Miss Jane Austen of the World Student Service Fund, Reverend Toru Matsumoto, who is director of the settlement work of the Japanese-Americans in connection with the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and Reverend Ralph Smeltzer of the Brethren Service Committee. Many students benefited from the messages and experiences of these people.

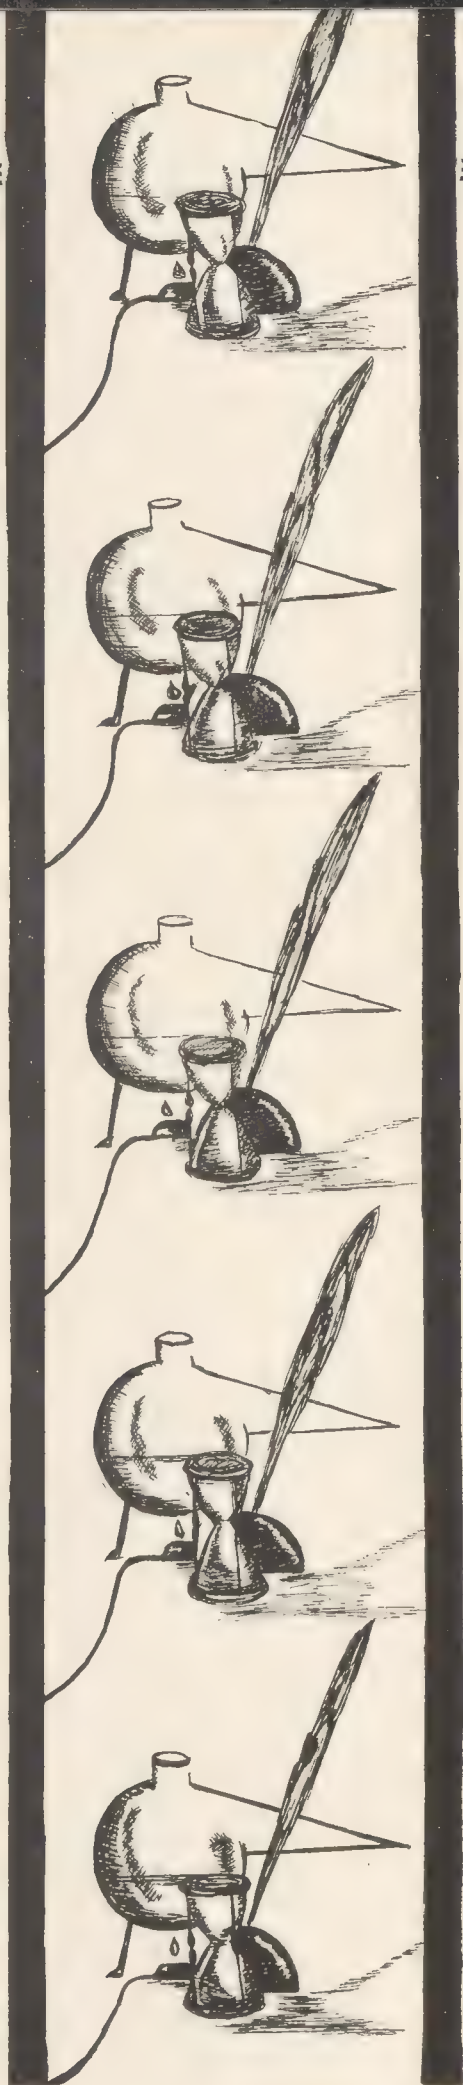

Included in the autumn religious activities was the Brethren Student Christian Conference. Frances Clemens, a junior Brethren student, acted as Student Director for the conference attended by over sixty-five students and leaders from Elizabethtown College; Bridgewater College, Virginia; Manchester College, Indiana; Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago; and Juniata.

And so it is that another year has seen the religious organizations of the campus do an excellent job in caring for the spiritual needs of Juniata students. Led by Raymond Day, Chairman of Religious Activities, they have gone far in maintaining the principles of Christianity which are so basic to life at Juniata College.

A Discussion Group in the Social Rooms

One of America's most prized possessions, freedom of the press, is exercised at Juniata. Through this medium a mass of impressions is conveyed in the language of pictures and of words.

A weekly newspaper gives the student an opportunity to express his views on world as well as campus affairs and stimulates active participation in college activities.

Through yearly publications, a cumulative record of the aims, ambitions, and achievements of the past inspires the student to set higher goals for the future.

This right of self-expression trains students to think clearly and helps to create future citizens capable of preserving our treasured freedom.

THE JUNIATIAN

Student publication of a college newspaper is not merely an extracurricular activity; it is, in a sense, the learning of a trade. Essentials in its production include writing in newspaper style, the recognition of, and special adherence to, newspaper ethics, a knowledge of proof reading symbols, an acquaintance with different kinds of headline type, and many other vital parts of the newspaper business.

Following is a week from the calendar of publication:

Wednesday morning. With this week's paper yet to be off the press, the news editors are searching in every office, hall, classroom and niche for news for the next issue. Evening finds these persons making assignments to the staff reporters.

Thursday, Miss Juniata finds a note in her post office box with her "Juniatian" assignment. Off she goes to the Public Relations Office for the information. There she is referred to the President, who, she discovers, is out-of-town until tomorrow.

Then there is the feature writer who has been approached to "write a feature." What subject?—just anything but Spring!

Friday finds Miss Juniata in the President's office. After arranging and rearranging the data, she finally writes the story Saturday afternoon.

With sheets of hand-written papers, which have just been read and edited, and a long list of stories that "should have been in yesterday," the News Editor is off to the typists and to scour the halls for the over-due stories. The calendar now reads Sunday night.

In the gray dawn of Monday a sleepy freshman timidly knocks on the Editor's door, seeking the copy, which has been reread and finally edited by the Editor-in-Chief, and is now ready to go to the printer.

Tuesday, when all the copy, except late news and scoops, has been sent to the printers, galley proof sheets are made and the editorial staff meets in the Juniatian Room. A staff of proof readers has corrected the sheets; the next step is to organize the pages and write headlines. This process, interrupted by occasional excursions to verify news or to discover more, consumes an entire evening.

Wednesday morning any late news is sent to the printer, and noon finds three members of the staff in the print shop. The job there consists of proof reading last minute galley proofs, putting the type into the forms ready for the press, making any last minute or unforeseen adjustments, and proofing the first copy off the press.

At five o'clock three weary, dirty, but satisfied "Juniatian" editors return to the campus, and they are followed in a short time by "The Juniatian."

Next? The same procedure for another week, and another and another, until May 28. However, each week is concerned with different stories; each week finds different possibilities for "The Juniatian;" each week finds the staff more interested in what they are doing, and more capable of doing it well.

Yearbooks are out; where's my pen?

THE ALFARATA

With the exception of "The Juniatian," the college newspaper, there is nothing that reflects more clearly the trends and ideas of the students at Juniata than the "Alfarata." Now in its twenty-seventh year of publication, the college yearbook has become as much a part of "J. C." as Founders or Students Hall.

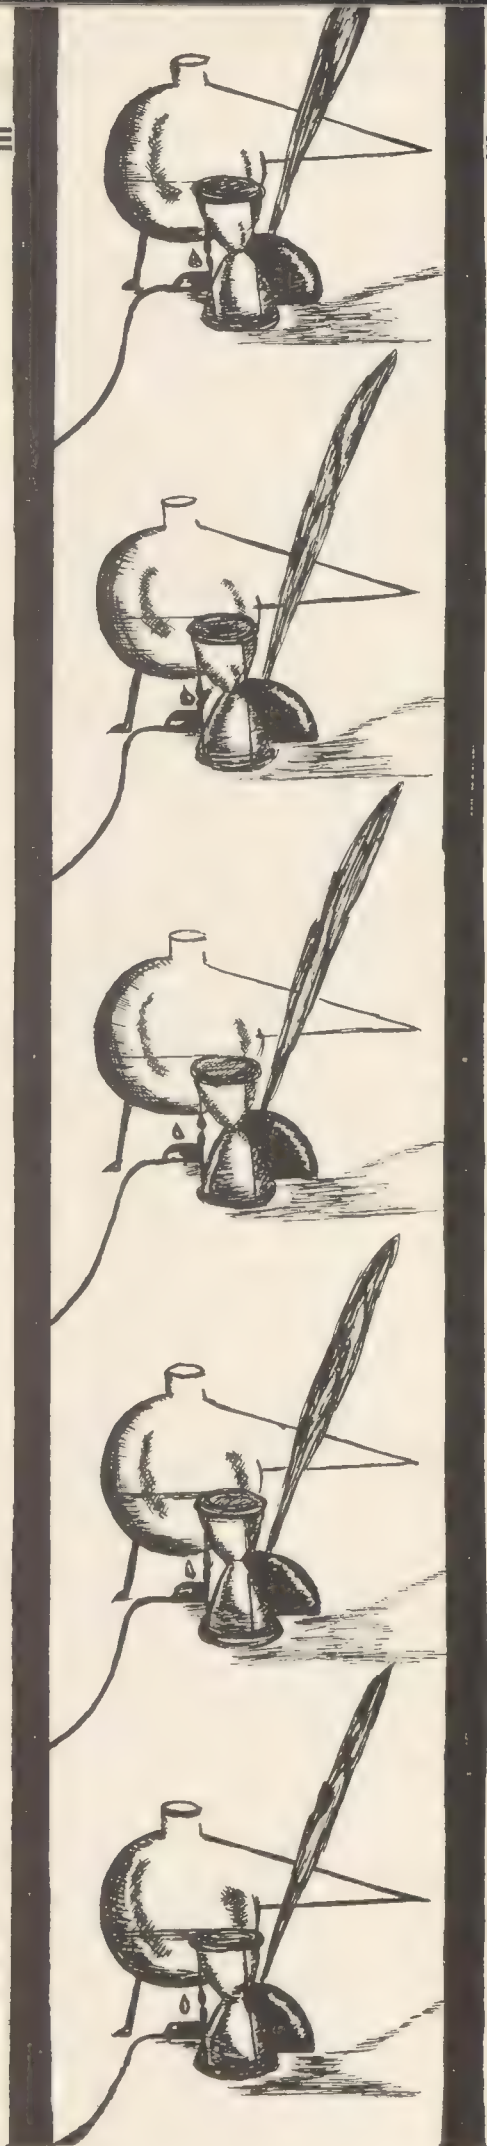

It is this publication that does most to bring back to our minds the memories of an eventful college life. All the little forgotten details crowd through its pages; familiar faces, May Day activities, Stunt Night, parties in the Gym, basketball, cherished campus spots, mindful hints of religious inspiration, all find their places in a well-ordered scrapbook.

The 1945 "Alfarata" staff will never forget two things—the difficulty to find people to write literary material who were not already overburdened with work, and above all the near impossibility of getting film for any size camera available. For this last reason this yearbook contains less informal shots than the plans had included. However, the "J. C." students came through loyally and produced many privately taken snapshots which have helped to complete this store of memories of the year.

And so this twenty-seventh edition of the college annual is presented to you. It represents the work of half a dozen editors and many more writers. Without exception, they have given the best of their abilities and much of their time and effort to its production. They have no desires beyond that of satisfying the readers of the present and the future.

In dedicating this yearbook to tomorrow's Juniatiens, the staff has tried to look beyond the production of a scrapbook of events and faces. They have attempted to determine how the activities and beliefs with which we of today's Juniata are familiar may influence the students who will attend Juniata in times to come.

*I*ntermingled with every phase of Juniata's life is music. Both students and faculty meet many times for group singing. At devotional meetings, club functions, all social affairs, and informal get-togethers on campus, music just naturally takes its place in the pattern. It is to be expected that from our school have come many talented musicians: instrumental groups, vocal trios, our all-girl A Cappella Choir. Gaining tremendously in popularity, too, are the concerts given by visiting artists. Additions to the personnel of music instructors combined with an increased interest in our music functions offer a promising outlook for Juniata in the world of music.

The Junior Trio: Crouse, Bair, Clemens
The Varsity Trio: Shoop, Hoffer, Dunmire

Juniata's extensive musical program opened last fall on Homecoming with an organ recital by Professor Donald S. Johnson. Professor Johnson, a new member of the music department, played several old favorites as well as one of his own compositions.

In November, Todd Duncan presented the first of the Cooperative Concerts for this season. Selections by Handel, Brahms, Schubert, and memorable tunes from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," sung in Mr. Duncan's rich baritone, made an excellent performance.

An entirely different type of program was presented by the American Ballad Singers, under the leadership of Elie Siegmeister. The diversified program included cowboy yodels, sea chanties, spirituals, blues, courting songs, work songs, and legends of early America.

On Thanksgiving, the orchestra presented its first program of the season with Professor Donald S. Johnson conducting. The music was by modern masters, including Mozart, Johann Strauss, Jr., Fritz Kreisler, and Morton Gould. Featured soloists for the event were Sarah Newton, organ, and Glenn Cave, violin.

Miss Mary Ruth Myers, an instructor of music, presented a piano recital the latter part of November which included works ranging from Bach and Mozart through Chopin to Edward MacDowell, first great American composer. The following week, Miss Myers presented this program at the Big Flats C.P.S. Camp, N.Y.

The Bary Ensemble

Fulfilling the annual tradition, at Christmas time a large group of students, under the leadership of John Kleffel, caroled at the homes of the faculty members. In spite of the extreme cold, a larger group than usual gathered at 5:30 a.m. for this event.

During semester exams, the all-girl A Cappella Choir made its first appearance at Vespers. Led by Professor Charles L. Rowland and accompanied by Alberta Glasgow, the Choir presented several numbers especially arranged by the director, anthems, and a group of Negro Spirituals.

The Bary Ensemble, second of the Cooperative Concerts, also appeared in January. Miss Gertrude Bary, founder of the group, was pianist, with Lorna Wren, flutist, Virginia Peterson, cellist, and Mary Becker, violinist. The program was one of the musical highlights of the year.

A Valentine Day Concert, presented in Oller Hall, included organ selections by Miriam Estep, selections by the Junior Trio, the Varsity Quartet, the Varsity Trio, Negro Spirituals by the Choir, and solos by Edna Mae Cox, clarinet, Betty Isenberg, piano, John Kleffel baritone. Members of the Varsity Quartet were Charlotte Dunmire, Betty Isenberg, Richard Chaplin, and John Kleffel, while Nada Shoop, Martha Hoffer, and Charlotte Dunmire composed the Varsity Trio. The Junior Trio is made up of Phyllis Bair, Frances Clemens and Lois Crouse.

The famous English organist and composer, Dr. Tertius Noble, appeared in a recital at Sunday Vespers. The founder of the York Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Noble is now organist of St. Thomas' Church, New York.

In March, the Orchestra held its Spring Concert, featuring an instrumental quartet and a small chorus. The quartet was composed of Margaret B. Kemp, violin; Virginia Geyer, cello; Nada Shoop, piano; and Sarah Newton, organ, with the following eleven members in the chorus: Margaret Gould, Elaine Hay, Betty Layman, Frances Clemens, Betty Isenberg, Pearl Pensyl, Richard Chaplin, Cornelius Strittmatter, George Gardner, Wesley Spahn, and Paul Yoder. Included in the program were selections from "My Maryland" by Sigmund Romberg with a vocal number by the chorus.

Richard Duffan, tenor from Harrisburg, presented a recital in March for the benefit of the World Service Fund Drive. His accompanist, Mary Ruth Myers, also played in a trio with Margaret Kemp, violinist, and Francis Baldwin, cellist. Mr. Duffan's selections ranged from Recitative and Aria to Negro Spirituals.

Due to the lack of transportation, the Choir was able to make only four trips, these being to Altoona, Johnstown, Tyrone and Lewistown, with twenty-four members on each trip. For the twenty-fifth year, they made their appearance at the Huntingdon Lutheran Church on Mother's Day.

Another group which made frequent appearances at teas, banquets and programs, on and off campus the first semester, was the String Trio, composed of Virginia Geyer, cello; Lois Crouse, piano; and Glenn Cave, violin. When the violinist was called to the service, it became an Instrumental Trio with Martha Hoffer, flutist.

Third and last of the Cooperative Concert Series was a Czechoslovakian pianist, Rudolf Firkunsky, who appeared in April. In his repertoire, he included such works as Dvorak's "G Minor Concerto" and also Smetara's compositions.

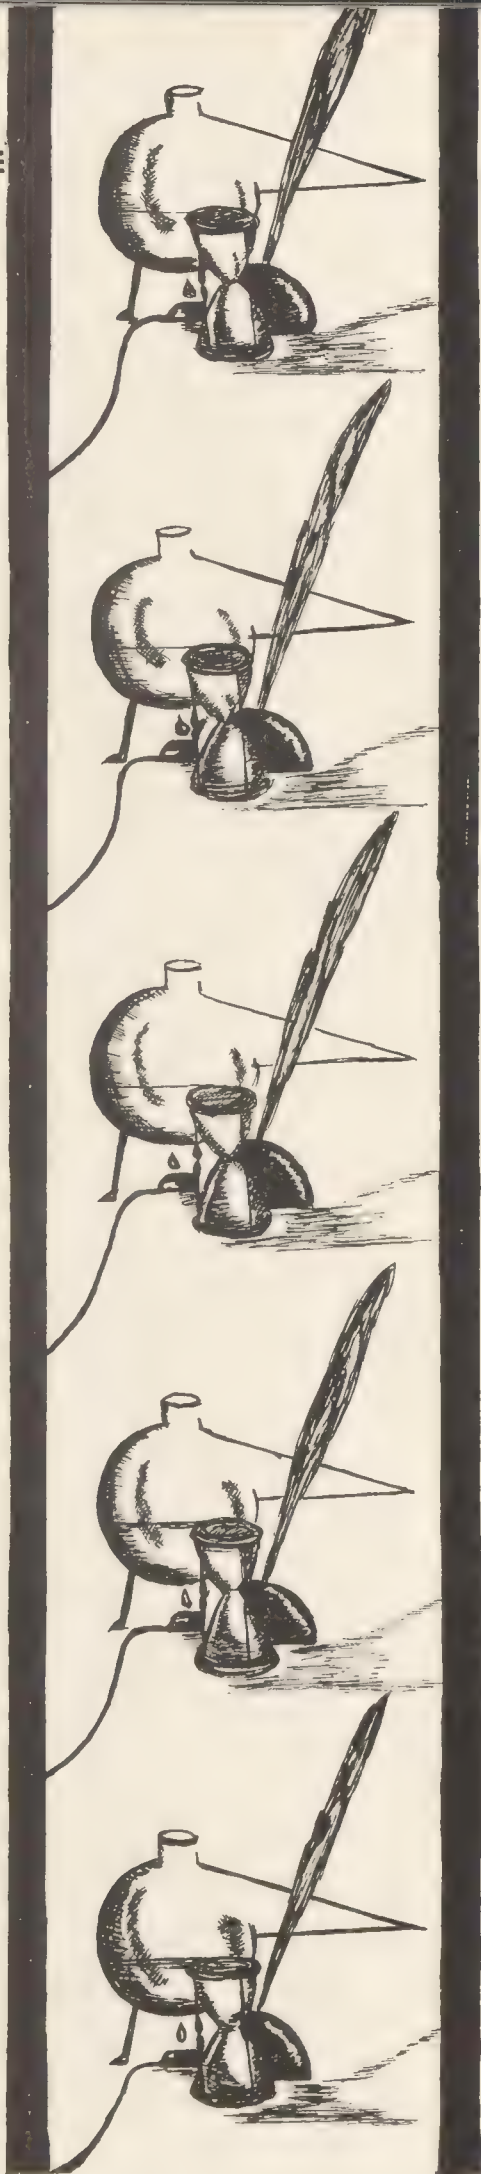

With May came the annual recitals for piano and voice students. Margaret Gould, soprano, assisted by John Kleffel, baritone, and Virginia Geyer, cello, presented the first at the Junior Reception. Climaxing the May Day festivities was a recital by Nada Shoop and Betty Isenberg. On Senior Class Day, another recital was presented in Oller Hall by Charlotte Dunmire and Sarah Newton, organist.

As a part of the Commencement activities, a rendition of the oratorio, "The Holy City," was presented by an all-girl choir. Under the direction of Professor Charles Rowland, this service was a fitting climax for the music program of 1945.

The knowledge and inspiration of the classroom, laboratory and chapel are transformed to vibrant experience in campus organizations, a vital phase of life at Juniata. The realization that within a group of similar concerns and common goals one can find the greatest enjoyment and the most benefits from a field of interest, leads students to participate in the various activities.

Among these groups are clubs for those with an attraction for some major field; associations for students seeking to develop a leisure-time activity — a sport, creative writing, or music; and service clubs for those who would share with others. But there is more than momentary enjoyment and satisfaction in the different campus groups; they are a part of Juniata's plan for a student's development—experience in living with others today that will mold a better man or woman in the world tomorrow.

CLUB OFFICERS: Lambda Gamma: Leona McFadden, President; Miriam Leiter, Vice President; Dorothy Owen, Secretary; Jean Dunkle Zook, Treasurer. International Relations Club: Llewellyn Merritt, President; Virginia Baker, Secretary-Treasurer. Alpha Beta Gamma: Betty Brumbaugh, Treasurer; Edna Thomas, Secretary; Dorothy Townsend, Vice President; Barbara Boyd, President. French Club: Marilyn Gracey, President; Elizabeth Shaffer, Vice President; Louise Stayer, Treasurer.

In accordance with the suggestion offered by the Leadership Conference preceding this school term, the few clubs which have remained active on J. C.'s campus reshaped their programs. Acceleration and concentration of duties upon the reduced student body made students aware of the fact that weekly and bi-monthly meetings were not only unnecessary, but impractical.

Including a greater number of students than any other of the departmental clubs is the Lambda Gamma sponsored by students in the field of Home Economics. Under the capable direction of President Leona McFadden, plans for an active year were under way almost simultaneously with the return to campus last fall. Open for its initial year, the study on First Brumbaugh Hall, referred to as the Lambda Gamma Room, was completed and many co-eds took advantage of this comfortable place for group and individual study. Volunteer Red Cross work was once more directed by this club, and as the holidays drew nearer the girls again sent greetings to Juniata's servicemen who are overseas. Having completed a successful year, the club and its advisers celebrated at its annual formal dinner, held December 6 at the Penn Koffee Shoppe in downtown Huntingdon. On this occasion Helen Keller acted as toastmistress, and Mrs. Anna Mueller, Director of Handicrafts in Pennsylvania, was the speaker.

The "Coffee Shoppes" which the club holds in Student' Hall following concerts have made the Lambda Gamma famous. During this year two were given: early in the year the Autumn Coffee Shoppe and then in February the other, with a Washington-Lincoln theme. Joan Rinehart was chairman of both, assisted by Helen Keller and Betty Boucher, respectively. Although they had few meetings, the "Home Ecers" made each one count; sewing for the Red Cross was always available for the girls' nimble fingers as they discussed and laid plans concerning the club. A particularly interesting meeting was built around a talk on life in Central America, presented by Alicia Leon, one of the new members. When the girls met at the fireplace for their usual meeting this May 8, the occasion was an initiation for the new freshmen members and installation of 1945-46 officers.

Although the activities of Le Circle Francais lie solely in its very interesting meetings, this organization, too, complied with the Conference's suggestion. Fewer meetings were held; however, various committees appointed by President Marilyn Gracey planned programs filled with French songs, French games, French skits, and refreshments! Probably the most outstanding meeting was one held in February at Professor Jack Oller's home at which time toothaches in typical French style were endured in a skit entitled "Cupidon, Dentiste." Dentist Monsieur Virginia Latshaw presided over the office scene where dental aches and pains, if not cured in the conventional manner, un-conventionally disappeared as did those of Monsieur Hazel Hemminger and Mademoiselle Betty Jean Cochrane when they found romance in the typical Parisian style. Other patients were Louise Stayer and Ruth Miller. Doris Deibert, the maid, also managed the skit.

Sponsored by students in the field of Elementary Education, the Alpha Beta Gamma, more familiarly known as the "A.B.C. Club," initiated eight new members October 9 at one of its special meetings. The outstanding work of the club for the year was that of constructing and equipping a puppet stage. Undaunted by the shortage of materials, the girls worked steadily and completed a fine piece of work, thereby gaining practical experience which can be directly applied to their chosen field. Then, too, they have contributed to the department a very valuable piece of equipment, which can be used by many future Elementary Education student generations. The president for this term was Barbara Boyd.

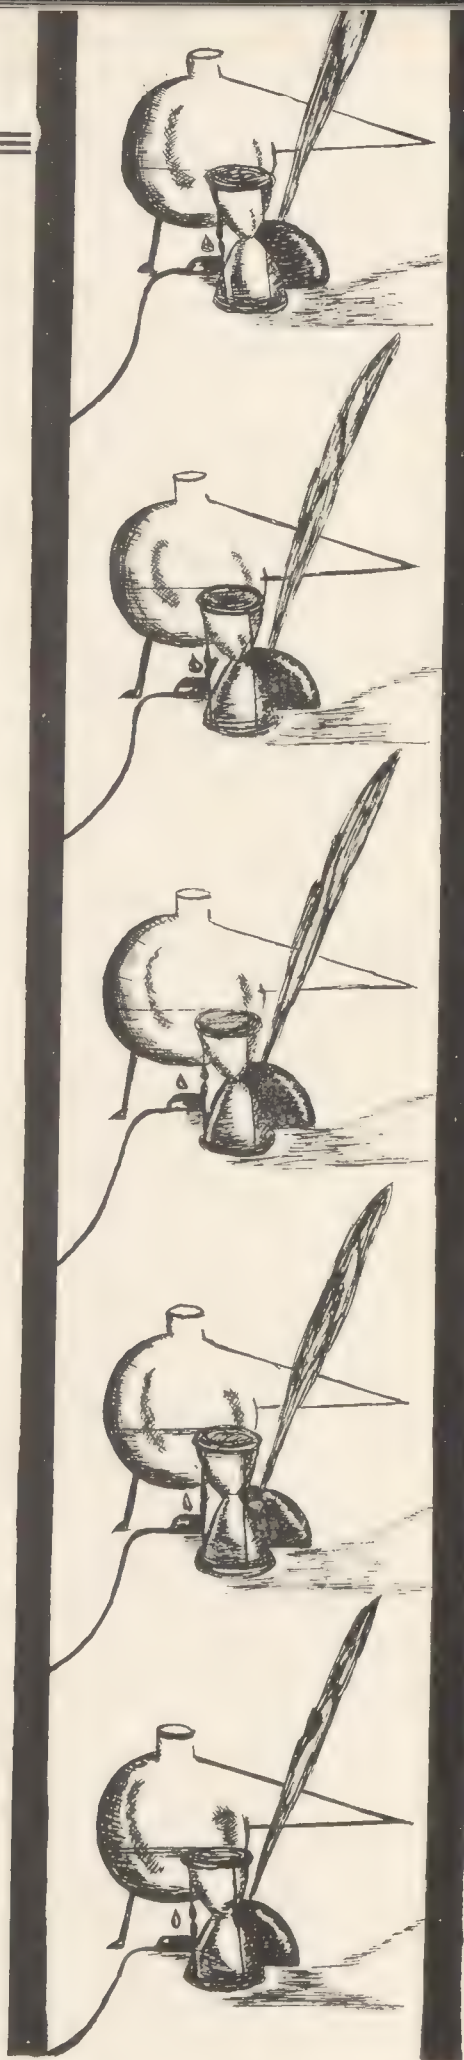

The International Relations Club is the remaining departmental club. At its meetings, held every two weeks, students discussed International Relations through the lives and influences of such men as Dewey, Churchill, Murphy, de Gaulle. Other discussions concerned post war activities through the Dumbarton Oaks and Yalta plans. Dr. Herbert K. Zassenhaus, adviser of the club, spoke at Dickinson College in the American Friends Conference held November 12. Several members of the club were able to attend this conference. President of the organization, Llewellyn Merritt, was able to attend the I.R.C. Conference for the Middle Atlantic States when it was held in Scranton, Pennsylvania, November 17.

Two guest speakers included in the club's program for the year were Mr. Paul A. Bowman, representative of the Friends Service Committee in Spain and of the Brethren Service Committee in South America, and Dr. Fayette A. McKenzie, Professor Emeritus of Sociology at Juniata. Mr. Bowman met with the group in February and revealed some startling facts about relief work in Spain, accompanied by slides of that country.

Dr. McKenzie at one of the spring meetings presented a lecture on volcanic Mexico shortly after he had returned from that country. In his talk, the speaker drew an analogy between volcanic eruptions and changes in human history. An accompanying film showed Paracutin, a newly discovered volcano, in full eruption.

As an aid in keeping I.R.C. members, as well as other students, informed about current issues, a special reading table is provided in the Browsing Room of the Library. The collection of books displayed there are the gift of the Carnegie Foundation.

In days of increased tension and strain, the individual with well-developed athletic interests has a two-fold weapon against imminent mental and physical deterioration. Active interest in sports affords mental relaxation while at the same time the body is kept in trim condition.

With the realization of this fact, Juniata has endeavored to include in its program a wide variety of opportunities for participation by each individual. Consequently, the advent of war and the accompanying dim-out of intercollegiate sports has not diminished the program of physical training. It has caused a change only in the mode of expression, a mode which some people believe to reach more nearly the intended goal based on the principle that good health is the foundation of personal success.

During the fourth year of war basketball, Coach Jack Oller's call was answered by one returning letterman, two men with Jayvee experience, and a number of inexperienced freshmen. Considering the lack of basketball material and the strong opposition, the record of eight wins, twelve losses, may be looked upon favorably.

The season opened November 24 in a game with Muhlenburg at Allentown. Fast passing and accurate shooting enabled the "Mules" to win, 63-34. Completing the weekend trip, the "Redskins" traveled to New York City to play the City College five who proved too good for J. C. to the tune of 66-41.

Opening the home season on the Huntingdon High School floor, the "Indians" played host to a strong Valley Forge team, which triumphed, 64-31. In the return bout in Phoenixville, accurate, rhythmic passing and uncanny shooting gave the "medics" the tilt, 84-40.

Juniata registered its first win December 6, by turning back Susquehanna University in a thrill-packed game. "Gerry" Rupert, freshman center, tossed in a foul shot to tie the contest in the last 20 seconds. In the three minutes overtime, the Ollermen captured the game, 45-41. In the second game, a determined Susquehanna vowed to upset the J. C. cagers, but the Indians proved too strong a match, walking away with the contest, 57-41.

Coach Oller's men won their first home game from Dickinson, 47-26. Snappy passing and fast breaks made the triumph easy. The upset of the season came when the Carlisle quintet trimmed Juniata, 33-31.

The next stop was Middletown, when J. C. and Olmstead Field battled bitterly till the final whistle, with the Army team holding on to an early lead to win, 51-42. Earl Kaylor led the Indians' attack with 14 points. In the Indians' last home game, the Olmstead five stopped the Indians' scoring splurge by freezing the ball for the last few minutes of play. Final score, 63-52.

In the last game before Christmas, the Oller quintet trounced Elizabethtown, 81-46. Highlight was Captain "Dick" Wareham's scoring spree, which broke the school's individual scoring record with a new high of 42 points. The second meeting of the teams was the same story—Indians 66, E'town 34.

In a home game January 6, the Redskins displayed the worst brand of ball of the 20-game schedule when they allowed Carnegie Tech to triumph, 56-31. Wanting revenge, the Ollermen surprised all by defeating Tech in the second tilt, a thriller to the final gun. The Redskins led all the game; but in the last quarter the Pittsburgh quintet began to click, and only a desperate last stand enabled the Ollermen to win, 60-57. Harry King's accurate shooting and all-star guarding ranked him as key man in Juniata's victory.

Westminster's six-foot "Titians" were the next opponents, beating J. C. in both fracas, 81-40 and 89-55.

January 26 saw J. C. travel to Collegeville to encounter Ursinus. Dan Restuccia kept the Redskins in the game with his shooting, but lack of height caused J. C. to succumb, 73-54.

The next defeat came at the hands of Lehigh, 55-39, when bad form once again plagued the Blue and Gold.

Juniata next met St. Francis College, romping off with the game, 65-31. In the season's final contest, John Carper's hawk-like guarding and accurate shooting helped the Redskins to win, 67-24.

Although only thirteen men reported for the first practice in the spring of '44, Coach Edgar S. Kiracofe produced a winning team with the material offered him. Juniata's "Indians" won five and dropped only one of the tough six-game schedule.

The boys from College Hill got off to a good start beating Elizabethtown College 13-6 in the opener. The team work in this game was rather ragged and therefore resulted in a good many errors. Their next game was played against stiff competition, Pitt University; nevertheless, the "Redskins" took this one 8-7. The Team showed a marked improvement in the fielding and hitting. The Indians dropped their third game to the Bucknell "Bisons" by a score of 17-3. After this defeat the boys really went to town. They repeated their previous performance by beating Elizabethtown 8-1. It was this game that got the ball rolling and produced the necessary teamwork to put a winning team on the diamond. In their fifth game, the Indians turned the tables on the Bucknell nine and beat them to the tune of 5-2. The last game of the season was won at the expense of Pitt University. The score of this game was 4-2.

The Eisenhart brothers, "Hank" and "Fuzzy," starred on the mound for the college nine. "Hank" won all five of the games while his brother, "Fuzzy," did not fare so well and received credit for the only loss of the season.

Captain Henry ("Hank") Eisenhart, the big left-hander, who later went on to pitch for the Cincinnati Reds, starred not only on the mound but also at the plate. Hank's batting average was 0.371, ranking second only to "Pete" Cassalia, center fielder, who batted an even 0.400.

Freshman Earl Kaylor, who incidentally held down the "hot corner," led the team with seven runs batted in. Three of Coach Kiracofe's boys batted well above the .300 mark, these three being Pete Cassalia, centerfield; Hank Eisenhart, pitcher; and Dick Wareham, shortstop.

This year for the first time since Juniata put together its first ball club, there is no baseball team to engage in intercollegiate competition. Wartime conditions, causing the shortage of manpower have struck the smaller colleges very hard. Only three lettermen from last year's team answered the call for baseball candidates. Along with these were eight other men, very few of whom had played baseball in high school. Therefore, because of the lack of material and difficult traveling conditions, baseball was dropped. Perhaps in the near future Juniata will again put a winning team on the diamond.

Hockey Enthusiasts

Calisthenics au matin

Fulfilling the motto "A girl for every sport, and a sport for every girl" to the best of its ability, the Women's Athletic Association has carried out a highly successful athletic program for the women throughout the year. During the fall, hockey took the major portion of the girls' sports schedule. The intramural games continued till late in November, when the big game of the season was played. Two all-class teams were chosen; the Army, led by General Hazel Hemminger, was defeated by Admiral Vivian Souder's Navy blue-jackets in a hard-fought battle. After this Thanksgiving Day program, the minor sports received more attention. The tennis players and embryo Robin Hoods then turned their attention to the indoor sports like paddle ball, table tennis, volley ball, bowling, and badminton. Paddle ball and table tennis had their individual enthusiasts; in the other games teams were organized. Volley ball held its own, being almost as popular as the major winter sport, basketball. The various classes organized volley ball teams which played each other intermittently during the winter and early spring. Toward the end of the season, mixed volley ball games were played.

One of the newest activities of the girls was to organize a calisthenics class, to be held at 6:30 each morning. The usual program was twenty minutes of vigorous exercise, then back to the dorm for a quick shower and breakfast. Considering the hour it was surprising that so many girls attended these "classes." Attendance ranged from more than fifteen girls on the good days, to a faithful four on the not-quite-so-cheerful mornings. However, except for these few hardy souls, morning calisthenics found Juniata in bed.

Following the Christmas holidays, a basketball schedule was drawn up under the supervision of Mrs. Betty R. Smaltz, Instructor in Physical Education for Women. Under her guidance, the classes formed their teams and began to play off the tournament. After the first few games, the girls began to play with more spirit, and often a keen rivalry arose between the top teams. The class of '46 and the freshmen, class of '48, were the leading contenders for the top honors. Neither team lost a game, except to each other. At the tournament's end, the game was forfeited by the juniors, making the freshmen the final winners.

The freshmen had by far the most interesting season, having played the Huntingdon High varsity several times and once the Mount Union team, coming out of all matches with a good record. Led by their captain, Pat Rodli, the freshman team made a fine showing. The team, whose regular players were Viv Souder, Betty Snyder, and Melva Fleishman, forwards, and Pat Gribben, Janet Allen, Alta Fisher, and Dot Belz, guards, was successful chiefly because of its excellent spirit and close cooperation.

The climax of the WAA's sports campaign was reached on Play Day. At this time forty students from nearby colleges were invited to attend and compete in various athletic activities, and to join in specially planned social functions. Basketball and volley ball were the chief attractions of the day, supplemented by mush ball, paddle ball, and badminton. The basketball teams from Shippensburg State Teachers College, Indiana State Teachers College, and Lebanon Valley College played against each other and their hostesses in the matches. The morning game between Lebanon Valley and Indiana was won by the former school, which also beat Juniata in a half game. In the afternoon Juniata outscored Shippensburg in a full game, and the day was ended by a half game between Shippensburg and Indiana in which the Shippensburg lassies were victors. After the main functions of the afternoon were over, a tea was held for the visitors and WAA members in the Social Rooms.

An outstanding project reflecting the cooperation and energy of the WAA is their new clubroom in the basement of the Gym. About a week before spring vacation the fun began. An energetic group of girls, with Nory Edwards as ringleader, started out to transform the dingy basement room into an attractive, useful place. With quarts of paint and lots of elbow grease, the shower room as well was re-done. The whole new room, complete with deck tennis, shuffle-board, and ping pong, is a real achievement to be chalked up to the credit of the WAA this year.

The WAA has always held as one of its ideals that of an alert mind in a healthy body. As increasing emphasis is being placed on physical fitness, the girls have responded in working together to establish a fair program to which the students might adhere in their wish to better their physical as well as their social health. The value of good sportsmanship and fair play in everyday activities cannot be underestimated, and the more they are practiced on the playing fields, the more they will be applied in actual life activities.
